STATE CONVENTION.

The State Convention of the Democratic Conservative Party of North Carolina will meet at Greensboro on Wednesday, the first day of May next.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Conservative and Democratic citizens of Wake County will hold a Convention at the Court House in this city, on Saturday, April 13th, 1872, for the purpose of selecting delegates to represent the county in the approaching State Convention, at Greensboro, and to form a more perfect organization for the coming campaign. Chairmen of town ship committees are requested to hold primary meetings in their respective townships and select delegates to attend this county Convention.

Ch'n County Executive Committee.

THE POOL OF POLITICS.

Gov. Caldwell, in unlawfully appointing his "Commissioners" to assume control of the two Asylums and the Penitentiary, hypocritically avers that his desire is "to take those Institutions out of the pool of politics." A very laudable intention, truly! But the Governor will pardon us if we take his generous assertion cum grano salis. It smacks too strongly of the Pecksniffian odor of unselfish generosity to deceive even the most superficial observer. His fling at the present Boards in charge of those Institutions is not only unwarranted and unjust, but is totally beneath the dignity of the Chief Magistrate of a great State. His imputation that political considerations have entered into the management of those Institutions, under the rule of the Conservative party, is without foundation in fact. He desires to take them out of the pool of politics. Let us see if the Conservative party has immersed them in political waters.

At the Insane Asylum, Dr. Eugene Grissom, a consistent adherent to the Republican party, was retained by the Conservative party upon its assumption of power in the State, as Superintendent of that Institution, notwithstanding a strong effort was made to displace him, and the claims of several prominent Conservative physicians were strongly urged upon political grounds. He was retained in his place, not only because of his eminent fitness and capacity for the position, but also because the Conservative party desired that no political considerations should enter into the management of the Insane Asylum.

Gen. Dockery, of whom it is needless to say, that he is and has been a prominent Republican politician, was retained upon the Board of Directors of the Penitentiary, because the General Assembly was anxious to testify to the people of the State, that that Institution should be lifted above the atmosphere of party.

At the Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind, John Nichols had been elected Superintendent by a Board of as perhaps as bitter Radicals as could be found in North Carolina, and was in office when the present Board, appointed by the General Assembly, took possession. Notwithstanding this fact, he was re-elected to the position by the present Conservative Board, because the Trustees saw fit to discard all political prejudices in the discharge of their duty to the people of the State. At this Institution, also, James H. Harris, the most prominent colored Radical in the State, and a bitter and extreme partisan, was retained as Supervisor of the colored department, until the Board of Trustees, from motives of economy abolished the office, by transferring its duties to the shoulders of the Superintendent. Henry Potter, a United States Commissioner at the time of his appointment, was placed in charge of the shoe shop; and Henry Gorman, an intense Radical, theretofore appointed on account of his politics, was retained in charge of the carpenter shop until it was found to be an expense to the Institution, and was done away with.

In view of these facts, we ask, if the Governor is justified in his insinuation that under Conservative management these State Institutions have been placed in the "pool of politics?" Do these facts not disprove his undignified and malicious slur, and exhibit his hypocritical pretensions in their true light? The pool of politics, indeed! Why, the late action of his Excellency was induced by no reason save the necessities of his party. The Radical "pool of politics" has its fountain head in the gubernatorial chair. The Governor bathes in its slimy waters day after day; its vile vapors moisten his every official act; his vision is limited to its turbid surface; his ears hear only the plashing of its black waters; he lives and moves, and has his official being in this noisome pool, and he attempts to scuttle and sink the ship of State beneath its murky waves.

And this is the man, who, in pursuit of partisan ends, professes to be desirous of sinking party considerations. The hypocrisy of the Governor is manifest. He cannot build for himself a reputation for political magnanimity, upon such a foundation. Take away his dough face of pretended zeal for the good of the State, and he stands revealed as a malignant partisan, who, to gratify his own selfish purposes, would cripple and destroy the penal institutions and public charities of North Carolina.

WILL THE ERA ANSWER?

The Era avows its readiness to meet the "News and Sentinel" combined, in the field of legitimate discussion." Very well. Before the campaign opens, however, we would like to interrogate the Era on one or two points, as the Editor has distinguished himself in the discussion of complicated Constitutional questions. As the author of the "Davidson letters," written during the war, he was a strong advocate of civil liberties and certain Constitutional limitations.

Will the Era answer us the following questions:

I. Is that clause of the Congressional Kuklux Act which suspends the writ of Habeas Corpus constitutional?

II. Does the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Clark vs. Stanley give Gov. Caldwell the power to make the appointments of Directors of the Penitentiary, and Trustees for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind Institution, in the manner in which the Governor has made the said appointments?

III. Is there any provision in the State Constitution or in the Acts of the Legislature, authorizing the Governor to make the said appointments, except by the advice and consent of the Senators elect; and has not the conduct of the Governor in the premises been in contravention of the law?

Now, from the fondness of the Editor of the Era for discussions on questions of Constitutional law, we are satisfied he has studied these questions closely, and formed his own opinion concerning them. Before entering "on the field of legitimate discussion," it will be well that our premises be well understood and agreed on. If the Era is preparing to make a defence of Radicalism, we insist that it must either avow or disavow the principles of its party. If the Ku-Klux Act be unconstitutional—if Governor Caldwell's conduct is without warrant of authority or law, in the opinion of the Era, it is proper that it should so declare. At least, we insist on a fair and unequivocal answer to our interrogatories. If that paper be in earnest in its desire for legitimate discussion, then it will not refuse to answer.

THE PRESIDENT'S POLITICS.

The President is a mere tool in the hands of his political advisers. He has no fixed principles of his own. Until he was nominated by the Republicans, he was an avowed Democrat. He would not doubt have accepted the nomination at the hands of the Democrats, if he had first been nominated by that party. Such a man can have no firm political convictions, but must remain a mere machine, entirely under the control and influence of those who assume to lead the Radical party.

What cares Grant for party platforms or political principles? What does he understand about the theory of Government? or, if he were capable of understanding it, what does he care about one particular form of Government more than another? It is all the same to him so that he can indulge his favorite pastimes—smoke his cigar, witness a horse-race, spend his Summers at Long Branch, pocket his $25,000 per annum as salary, receive gifts, and wield his military power, with absolute sway, over the down-trodden South.

Grant's political principles! Where has he ever expressed any? What are they? Who knows them? We would be glad to be enlightened.

"CORNERED" HIMSELF.

We refused to answer an article in the local columns of the Era, in which certain questions were propounded to us, because, as stated by us, we had reason to believe that the political Editor of the Era did not endorse nor approve of the said article. The local Editor, in yesterday's Era, informs us that he is responsible for what appears in the local columns. If his Senior does not approve of his political articles and does not believe the charges made by the local Editor, it is useless for us to answer them. It is a sufficient and triumphant refutation of charges made in the local columns, that Mr. Hanes himself does not believe them to be true. This is proof conclusive that it is a mere electioneering trick—one which the Editor in chief of the Radical organ does not approve of and will not condescend to use. As the local Editor has thus cornered himself, in his own house, we leave him to his own reflections.

CALL YOUR FRIENDS?

The Era has not a word of defense in regard to the recent unlawful attempts of Gov. Caldwell, to oust the Legislative Boards of the State Institutions by the Governor's own appointees. That paper only says, "we are authorized to say," &c. The Era does not pretend to offer any defence whatever, for the Governor's extraordinary and unprecedented course. "Call you this backing up your friends?"

One hundred and eleven prisoners were in the Richmond (Va.) Jail Monday; the terms of imprisonment of five expiring that day reduced it to a hundred and six.

A drunken man in the employ of the Atlantic and Gulf railroad, lay down on the track at Jacksonville, Fla., and was cut in two by the cars.

SPIES AND INFORMERS.

One of the most despicable characteristics of Carpet-bag rule in the South is the infamous system of espionage, which has become a part and parcel of Radical government. Before the war, there were no such creatures in the Southern States as what are known as government detectives. Now they are found in almost every neighborhood. Spies and informers, with cat like step and eaves-dropping ear, are sent out in every direction, to pry into the private affairs of honest men, and watch every out-cropping of disloyalty.

The characterless vagabonds who are employed by the Government to sneak through the country, like thieves in the night, to traduce and malign the motives and characters of gentlemen, are the veriest dregs of human society. They are beneath the level of the brute creation, being destitute of every honorable impulse and every humane feeling.

A government which has sunk so low in character, in dignity and in honor, as to send forth as its accredited officials, the out-croings of creation, to spy into the conduct of its citizens, is unworthy the respect of any nation and can never deserve, as it will never receive, the confidence and affections of its own people.

STILL DECLINING.

Notwithstanding the result in New Hampshire, which went Radical last Tuesday by 1200 against 6,000 majority for Grant at the last Presidential election, the opinion in Washington City and throughout the North is getting stronger and stronger that the Radicals will be easily defeated in November. There seems to be a strong determination on the part of all who oppose the Administration to unite their forces and consolidate their strength, and if this policy be adopted, Grants overthrow is considered certain.

Grant stock is evidently declining. We trust it will not fall so far below par by the time the Convention meets in Philadelphia that the Radicals will be afraid to invest in it for the next campaign. The failure to nominate Grant we would consider a serious blow to the Democratic prospect.

Tribute of Respect.

The following resolutions were adopted at a regular meeting of the Hesperian Literary Society at Trinity College, N. C., on the 15th of March, 1872.

WHEREAS, It hath pleased a mysterious but All Wise Providence to call hence into the Spirit Land our much beloved and highly esteemed brother Hesperian, W. W. Beckwith, Jr., who died at his father's residence in Raleigh, N. C., on the 4th of March, 1872; and as we deem it fit and proper to give expression to the feelings of sorrow which are the more deeply impressed since his separation from us has been so short, and he being a young and honored graduate on the occasion of the last commencement of this institution.

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things, we deeply lament the loss of one so full, as it were, upon the threshold of promising manhood, with bright prospects and flattering hopes of renown and usefulness, as a patriot and a scholar.

Resolved 2nd, That we have received with profound sorrow the intelligence of the death of our esteemed and worthy former fellow student; and that we tender our most sincere condolence and our deepest and most heart-felt sympathy to the bereaved family.

Resolved 3rd, That we will long cherish the memory of our young and lamented brother as a kind, genial and talented fellow Hesperian, and that we will wear the usual badge of mourning for 30 days.

Resolved 4th, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Society, and also that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased, and to the Raleigh Sentinel, Daily News, Christian Advocate and Roanoke News for publication.

NORROW.

Upon my lips she laid her touch divine,
And merry speech and careless laughter
died;
She fixed her melancholy eyes on mine,
And would not be denied.

I saw the west wind loose its cloudlets white,
In flocks soaring through the April sky;
I could not staid, though joy was at its height,
For she stood silent by.

I watched the lovely evening fade away,
A mist was slightly drawn across the stars,
She broke her quiet dream—I heard her say,
Behold your prison bars!

"Earth's gladness is not satisfy your soul,
This beauty of the earth in which you live
The crowning grace that sanctifies the whole
That I alone can give."

I heard, and shrunk away from her afraid:
But still she held me, and would still abide,
Youth's bounding impulses slackened and obeyed,
With slowly ebbing tide.

"Look, then, beyond the evening star," she said,
"Beyond the changing splendors of the day,
Accept the pain, the weariness, the dread,
Accept and bid me stay."

I turned and clasped her close with sudden strength,
And slowly, sweetly, I became aware,
Within my arms God's angels stood at length,
White-robed and calm and fair.

And now I look beyond the evening star,
Beyond the changing splendors of the day,
Knowing the pain He sends more precious far,
More beautiful than they.

Mark Twain as Editor-in-Chief.

Mark Twain, in his new volume, "Roughing It," gives his experience as local editor of the Virginia City (Nevada) Daily Enterprise, and incidentally credits the "leading writer" of a daily journal in a manner as rare as it usually is deserved. In the case mentioned, Mark had tired of his labor as local editor. He says:

"I wanted variety of some kind. It came. Mr. Goodman went away for a week, and left me the post of chief editor. It destroyed me. The first day, I wrote my leader in the forenoon. The second day, I had no subject, and put it off till evening, and then copied an elaborate editorial out of the American Encyclopedia, that steadfast friend of the editor all over the land. The fourth day, I 'foiled around' till midnight, and then fell back on the Cyclopaedia again. The fifth day, I cudgelled my brain till midnight, and then kept the press waiting while I penned some bitter personalities on six different people. The sixth day I labored till far into the night and brought forth—nothing. The paper went to press without an editorial. The seventh day I resigned. On the eighth, Mr. Goodman returned, and found six duels on his hands. My personalities had born fruit.

Nobody, except he has tried it, knows what it is to be an editor. It is easy to scribble local rubbish, with the facts all before you; it is easy to clip selections from other papers; it is easy to string out a correspondence from any locality; but is unappealing hardship to write editorial. Subjects are the trouble—the dreary lack of them. I mean. Every day it is a drag, drag, drag—think and weary and suffer—all the world is a dull blank, and yet the editorial column must be filled. Only give the editor a subject, and his work is done—it is no trouble to write it up; but fancy how you would feel if you had to pump your brains dry every day in the week, fifty-two weeks in the year. It makes one low-spirited simply to think of it. The matter that each editor of a daily paper in America writes in the course of a year would fill from four to eight bulky volumes like this book. Fancy what a library an editor's work would make after twenty or thirty years' service. Yet so often wonder that Dickens, Scott, Bulwer, Dumas, &c., have been able to produce so many books. If these authors had wrought as voluminously as newspaper editors do, the result would be something to marvel at indeed.

How editors can continue this tremendous labor, this exhausting consumption of brain-force (for their work is creative, and not a mere mechanical laying up of facts, like reporting), day after day and year after year is incomprehensible. Preachers take two months' holiday in midsummer, for they find that to produce two sermons a week is wearing in the long run. In truth it must be so, and it is so; and therefore how an editor can take from ten to twenty texts and build upon them from ten to twenty painstaking editorials a week, and keep it up all the year round, is further beyond comprehension than ever. Ever since I have survived my week as editor I have found at least one pleasure in any newspaper that comes to my hand; it is in acquiring the long columns of editorials and wondering to myself how in the mischief he did it.

A drover who sells his cattle by live weight always gives them as much water as they will drink before driving them on the scales, that is his way of watering stock.

John says: "Me and George Washington both have a birth-day this year in February. Twenty days more I would have been Washington. Twenty days less Washington would have been me. I was born the 2d and he the 22d."
